Typical home buyers make up their minds within minutes of viewing a home.

Home staging can help maximize the price and speed the sale of a home.

A city doesn't shine on the streets by the fire. Immediately organized storage is a pristine clean. The perfect planter by the front door. These are just a few of the touches - large and small - that turn home browsers into home buyers.

At DEKORA, we create a series of wonderful first impressions that make properties more attractive, memorable and desirable to home buyers of every type and price point.

We're in the business of home staging - the art of professionally preparing a home for sale in order to achieve the highest price in the fastest time. DEKORA's professional home stagers draw upon extensive backgrounds in film set design and visual arts to turn sale properties into show homes. With its proven success rate, home staging is flourishing in real estate markets across Canada and the US.

Home staging combines proven real estate sales techniques with the art of film set design to present the best possible impression of a sale property, both inside and out. Combining expert merchandising with a thorough understanding of both current design trends and the psychology of the home purchasing process, we create inviting spaces with broad appeal to a wide range of buyers.

At DEKORA, our team merges time-tested home staging skills with the flexibility, speed and cost-efficient resources acquired from years of experience in film set decorating. Tailored to the unique needs of each client, our services range from a 2-3 hour consultation where we detail recommendations clients can execute themselves to creating a fully staged home incorporating both interior and exterior enhancements.

Find out how our services are making home sales more successful and profitable. Visit our web site at dekora.com for more information or contact us for a free estimate.

WEB SERVICES GATEWAY

THE FASTEST PATH TO INTELLIGENT WEB SERVICES ADOPTION

SOAPswitch
WEB SERVICES GATEWAY

Key Benefits of Web Services

- Introduce open, internet standards-based technology to your core infrastructure.
- Lower the cost and complexity of deploying and maintaining systems.
- Accelerate the integration of existing systems through the reliability, performance, and security of standardized connections.
- Leverage existing software functionality to build other business applications.
- Enhance the ability to anticipate and meet the needs of customers.
- Improve collaboration across business units and across companies.

ADVANTAGES: A BETTER WAY TO INTEGRATE APPLICATIONS

Your applications and systems have the face of your business. They define business processes and incorporate intellectual assets that give you your competitive edge. As your company grows and evolves to meet market challenges, so does your IT infrastructure. The interactions between your applications become more complex. With every business process or application added to your infrastructure, the task of integration and maintenance compounds exponentially. Before long, your systems begin to divide your business practices, not the other way around.

How do you regain control of your enterprise applications? Web Services technologies should be considered a core part of your ongoing integration strategy. Unlike previous approaches to integration, which lock you into hard-to-change, proprietary tools and protocols, Web services are built upon widely accepted Internet standards such as XML, HTTP, SOAP, and SOAP. Leveraging well-trodden and development tools that you likely already have in-house, Web services allow you to harness and share your core business processes. Critical business functions such as "Inventory" or "Check Inventory" become available for re-use throughout your extended enterprise, enabling employees, customers, and partners to efficiently interact with your business.

Actional SOAPswitch™ - the Web Services Gateway is integral to the successful and intelligent deployment of Web services technologies. It substantially accelerates your migration path towards Web services and opens the burden of ongoing maintenance by providing a centralized management, monitoring, and security infrastructure.

REQUIREMENTS of Web Services Deployment

SELECTING WEB SERVICES AS THE FOUNDATION OF YOUR INTEGRATION STRATEGY GIVES YOU GREATER FLEXIBILITY AND CHOICE. REGARDLESS OF HOW YOU CHOOSE TO IMPLEMENT YOUR WEB SERVICES INITIATIVES, HOWEVER, THERE ARE CRITICAL DEPLOYMENT CONSIDERATIONS THAT REQUIRE CAREFUL UPFRONT PLANNING.

PERFORMING WEB SERVICES USING EXISTING SOFTWARE INVESTMENTS

When you introduce new business applications into your IT environment, you need to leverage the business processes, logic, and data within your existing software systems. While many development tools support standard Web services essentially, most of your existing systems do not. An adaptation layer that enables your packaged, controls, and legacy applications to become available via Web services standards is a critical element of successful implementation.

SELECTION OF WEB SERVICES IMPLEMENTATION

When you require your business processes on Web services, it is vital for you to have granular access control over those services. Each time a Web service is delivered, unique access controls and security policies at both ends of the connection must be enforced. Your Web services security framework must mediate between the disparate, competing security models of your applications, and your enterprise security infrastructure to deliver true end-to-end security.

MANAGING AND MAINTAINING YOUR WEB SERVICES

Web Services technologies accelerating the integration of your applications, you will quickly require additional management capabilities. As multiple software systems begin to participate in Web services, you will need a unified view of your disparate services that enables you to view application dependencies, manage changes, and make intelligent decisions about how to optimize performance and uptime.
